The Changing World of Work

The world of work is changing faster than ever before. In the past, most people had one job for life. Today, however, it is common for individuals to change careers several times. According to the International Labour Organisation, technology, globalisation, and demographic shifts are all influencing how and where people work.

Many jobs that existed twenty years ago have either disappeared or been transformed. For example, automation has replaced some manual jobs, especially in manufacturing. At the same time, new roles in digital marketing, data analysis, and green energy have become popular. These jobs often require skills that are very different from those used in traditional industries. This means that lifelong learning is no longer optional - it is a necessity.

Employers now look for workers who can adapt quickly, communicate well, and think critically. Soft skills, such as teamwork and problem-solving, are just as important as technical knowledge. In many workplaces, remote or hybrid models have become more common, allowing employees to work from home at least part of the time. This shift has created both opportunities and challenges for workers and managers.

Workers today must keep up with these rapid changes to remain competitive. Governments and schools also have a role to play in offering training programs that prepare people for the jobs of the future. Although the job market is more uncertain, it also offers more flexibility than ever before. In short, while the workplace is evolving, one thing remains true: if you want to stay ahead of the game, you need to be willing to learn, adapt, and grow throughout your career.

Question 36: Which of the following is the reason for the changes in the world of work?

- A. The shift towards more certain work options in the modern society
- B. The increasing need for having more than one job at the same time
- C. The pressure to learn new skills to get jobs with higher salary
- D. The impact of technology, international integration, and population shifts

Question 37: Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?

- A. Some manual jobs have been replaced by automation.
- B. Career changes are influenced by global trends.
- C. More and more people are out of work today.
- D. Lifelong learning is now necessary for employees.

Question 38: What is the author's view on soft skills?

- A. They are especially valuable for team leaders in work settings.
- B. They are important and valued alongside professional skills.
- C. They are considered the most crucial for global integration.
- D. They are only useful in online working environments.

Question 39: What does the phrase “keep up with” in the fourth paragraph most likely mean?

- A. accept ongoing development
- B. avoid quick changes
- C. understand why changes happen
- D. match the speed of change

Question 40: Which statement is TRUE about preparation for the modern job market?

- A. Policymakers must take the lead in creating new jobs.
- B. People needn't adapt to the changes in the job market.
- C. Workers have to learn new skills and adjust to new challenges.
- D. Training programs are offered by private organisations.

PART II: QUESTIONS 41 – 44

Match each of the following questions from 41 to 44 with the most appropriate response by marking ONE of the options A, B, C, D, E or F on your answer sheet.

Questions	Responses
Question 41: What would you say to a friend who's nervous about an upcoming test?	A. Thank you so much! What you explained made it clearer for me.
Question 42: How would you politely ask someone to speak louder during a presentation?	B. I know things get busy, but can we try to start meetings on time?
Question 43: How would you show appreciation to a classmate who helped you understand a tough topic?	C. Don't worry! You've studied hard. You'll do well!
Question 44: What would you say to a teammate who keeps arriving late to group meetings?	D. Thanks for being patient with me.
	E. Would you mind speaking up a little? I had trouble catching that part.
	F. I'm sorry, but I don't think I can help right now.

PART III: QUESTIONS 45 – 50

For questions from 45 to 50, read the passage below and decide if each of the following statements is True (T), False (F) or Not given (NG). Mark the option T, F or NG on your answer sheet.

The Power of Fan Communities

In recent years, fan communities have become a significant part of youth culture worldwide. These groups, often built around common passions like music, movies, or celebrities, give young people a sense of belonging and identity. According to a global study, a large number of teenagers are part of fan communities, actively looking for others who enjoy the same things.

In Vietnam, fan communities have grown rapidly, especially among teenagers. A recent study highlighted how K-pop cover dance groups in Hanoi offer young people opportunities to express themselves and build social networks. These communities often organize events, share content online, and support social activities, showing their positive impact on youth development.

Fan communities also play a role in taking action for important causes. For instance, a K-pop campaign brings people together to speak up about environmental issues. Their actions have influenced some companies to change, such as using cleaner energy.

However, fan communities are not without challenges. Some members face criticism or misunderstanding from those outside their fandoms. Despite this, many fans continue to join these communities, finding support and feeling more confident through shared experiences.

Overall, fan communities offer young people a place to connect, be creative, and take part in activities they care about. As these communities continue to grow, they remain an important part of youth culture, both in Vietnam and around the world.

Question 45: It is uncommon for teenagers to join fan communities even when they enjoy the same kinds of music or shows.

Question 46: Teenagers join fan communities not just for fun but also to express their identity and expand their social connections.

Question 47: Some fan communities organize different activities that are beneficial to young people.

Question 48: Fan communities failed to drive businesses to take action to protect the environment.

Question 49: Fan communities have official actions to prevent negative comments on their members.

Question 50: Due to criticism and misunderstanding, fan communities have less influence on young people.

The Changing World of Work

The world of work is changing faster than ever before. In the past, most people had one job for life. Today, however, it is common for individuals to change careers several times. According to the International Labour Organisation, technology, globalisation, and demographic shifts are all influencing how and where people work.

Many jobs that existed twenty years ago have either disappeared or been transformed. For example, automation has replaced some manual jobs, especially in manufacturing. At the same time, new roles in digital marketing, data analysis, and green energy have become popular. These jobs often require skills that are very different from those used in traditional industries. This means that lifelong learning is no longer optional - it is a necessity.

Employers now look for workers who can adapt quickly, communicate well, and think critically. Soft skills, such as teamwork and problem-solving, are just as important as technical knowledge. In many workplaces, remote or hybrid models have become more common, allowing employees to work from home at least part of the time. This shift has created both opportunities and challenges for workers and managers.

Workers today must keep up with these rapid changes to remain competitive. Governments and schools also have a role to play in offering training programs that prepare people for the jobs of the future. Although the job market is more uncertain, it also offers more flexibility than ever before. In short, while the workplace is evolving, one thing remains true: if you want to stay ahead of the game, you need to be willing to learn, adapt, and grow throughout your career.

Question 36: Which of the following is the reason for the changes in the world of work?

- A. The increasing need for having more than one job at the same time
- B. The pressure to learn new skills to get jobs with higher salary

For questions from 45 to 50, read the passage below and decide if each of the following statements is True (T), False (F) or Not given (NG). Mark the option T, F or NG on your answer sheet.

The Power of Fan Communities

In recent years, fan communities have become a significant part of youth culture worldwide. These groups, often built around common passions like music, movies, or celebrities, give young people a sense of belonging and identity. According to a global study, a large number of teenagers are part of fan communities, actively looking for others who enjoy the same things.

In Vietnam, fan communities have grown rapidly, especially among teenagers. A recent study highlighted how K-pop cover dance groups in Hanoi offer young people opportunities to express themselves and build social networks. These communities often organize events, share content online, and support social activities, showing their positive impact on youth development.

Fan communities also play a role in taking action for important causes. For instance, a K-pop campaign brings people together to speak up about environmental issues. Their actions have influenced some companies to change, such as using cleaner energy.

However, fan communities are not without challenges. Some members face criticism or misunderstanding from those outside their fandoms. Despite this, many fans continue to join these communities, finding support and feeling more confident through shared experiences.

Overall, fan communities offer young people a place to connect, be creative, and take part in activities they care about. As these communities continue to grow, they remain an important part of youth culture, both in Vietnam and around the world.

Question 45: It is uncommon for teenagers to join fan communities even when they enjoy the same kinds of music or shows.

Question 46: Teenagers join fan communities not just for fun but also to express their identity and expand their social connections.

Question 47: Some fan communities organize different activities that are beneficial to young people.

Question 48: Fan communities failed to drive businesses to take action to protect the environment.

Question 49: Fan communities have official actions to prevent negative comments on their members.

Question 50: Due to criticism and misunderstanding, fan communities have less influence on young people.

The Changing World of Work

The world of work is changing faster than ever before. In the past, most people had one job for life. Today, however, it is common for individuals to change careers several times. According to the International Labour Organisation, technology, globalisation, and demographic shifts are all influencing how and where people work.

Many jobs that existed twenty years ago have either disappeared or been transformed. For example, automation has replaced some manual jobs, especially in manufacturing. At the same time, new roles in digital marketing, data analysis, and green energy have become popular. These jobs often require skills that are very different from those used in traditional industries. This means that lifelong learning is no longer optional - it is a necessity.

Employers now look for workers who can adapt quickly, communicate well, and think critically. Soft skills, such as teamwork and problem-solving, are just as important as technical knowledge. In many workplaces, remote or hybrid models have become more common, allowing employees to work from home at least part of the time. This shift has created both opportunities and challenges for workers and managers.

Workers today must keep up with these rapid changes to remain competitive. Governments and schools also have a role to play in offering training programs that prepare people for the jobs of the future. Although the job market is more uncertain, it also offers more flexibility than ever before. In short, while the workplace is evolving, one thing remains true: if you want to stay ahead of the game, you need to be willing to learn, adapt, and grow throughout your career.

Question 36: Which of the following is the reason for the changes in the world of work?

- A. The impact of technology, international integration, and population shifts
- B. The increasing need for having more than one job at the same time
- C. The pressure to learn new skills to get jobs with higher salary
- D. The shift towards more certain work options in the modern society

Question 37: Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?

- A. More and more people are out of work today.
- B. Some manual jobs have been replaced by automation.
- C. Lifelong learning is now necessary for employees.
- D. Career changes are influenced by global trends.

Question 38: What is the author's view on soft skills?

- A. They are especially valuable for team leaders in work settings.
- B. They are considered the most crucial for global integration.
- C. They are important and valued alongside professional skills.
- D. They are only useful in online working environments.

Question 39: What does the phrase “keep up with” in the fourth paragraph most likely mean?

- A. match the speed of change
- B. understand why changes happen
- C. avoid quick changes
- D. accept ongoing development

Question 40: Which statement is TRUE about preparation for the modern job market?

- A. Workers have to learn new skills and adjust to new challenges.
- B. People needn't adapt to the changes in the job market.
- C. Training programs are offered by private organisations.
- D. Policymakers must take the lead in creating new jobs.

PART II: QUESTIONS 41 – 44

Question 42: How would you show appreciation to a classmate who helped you understand a tough topic?	B. I know things get busy, but can we try to start meetings on time?
Question 43: What would you say to a friend who's nervous about an upcoming test?	C. Don't worry! You've studied hard. You'll do well!
Question 44: How would you politely ask someone to speak louder during a presentation?	D. Thanks for being patient with me.
	E. Would you mind speaking up a little? I had trouble catching that part.
	F. I'm sorry, but I don't think I can help right now.

PART III: QUESTIONS 45 – 50

For questions from 45 to 50, read the passage below and decide if each of the following statements is True (T), False (F) or Not given (NG). Mark the option T, F or NG on your answer sheet.

The Power of Fan Communities

In recent years, fan communities have become a significant part of youth culture worldwide. These groups, often built around common passions like music, movies, or celebrities, give young people a sense of belonging and identity. According to a global study, a large number of teenagers are part of fan communities, actively looking for others who enjoy the same things.

In Vietnam, fan communities have grown rapidly, especially among teenagers. A recent study highlighted how K-pop cover dance groups in Hanoi offer young people opportunities to express themselves and build social networks. These communities often organize events, share content online, and support social activities, showing their positive impact on youth development.

Fan communities also play a role in taking action for important causes. For instance, a K-pop campaign brings people together to speak up about environmental issues. Their actions have influenced some companies to change, such as using cleaner energy.

However, fan communities are not without challenges. Some members face criticism or misunderstanding from those outside their fandoms. Despite this, many fans continue to join these communities, finding support and feeling more confident through shared experiences.

Overall, fan communities offer young people a place to connect, be creative, and take part in activities they care about. As these communities continue to grow, they remain an important part of youth culture, both in Vietnam and around the world.

Question 45: It is uncommon for teenagers to join fan communities even when they enjoy the same kinds of music or shows.

Question 46: Teenagers join fan communities not just for fun but also to express their identity and expand their social connections.

Question 47: Some fan communities organize different activities that are beneficial to young people.

Question 48: Fan communities failed to drive businesses to take action to protect the environment.

Question 49: Fan communities have official actions to prevent negative comments on their members.

Question 50: Due to criticism and misunderstanding, fan communities have less influence on young people.
